Notice.

DIFFICULTIES arising from the nature of the following work, the publisher has been compelled to remove to Philadelphia for the better execution of his plan. The editorial department has in consequence fallen into other hands. Mr. ALLEN'S present engagement rendering it impossible to superintend it in another city. The friends and relations of the different signers to the Declaration of Independence are therefore requested to direct their favors to the publisher, No. 443, Market-street, Philadelphia.

PROPOSALS
By Joseph M Sanderson,
For Publishing by Subscription,
A Biography of the Signers
OF THE
Declaration of Independence,
Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exertion of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptible rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens, with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontis-piece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

Written in the Ruins of * * * * * *.

Oh, stream whose proudly flowing tide,
Through scenes majestic love to glide;
Adorned by terrace, tower, and tree,
That borrowed still a grace from thee!
No more by terrace, and tower now,
Thy placid waves are doomed to flow;
Thyself the sole remaining grace,
Where once unnumber'd charms could trace
Their sweet impression on the spot:
These charms are faded, and forgot,
Their splendor sunk, their beauty flown,
Or beauteous in their fall alone.
The lord of many a former day,
Along thy margin lov'd to stray,
And view reflection in thy flood,
The pride of his parental wood:
The falling of thy silver stream,
Soothed many a list'ner's waking dream!
All, all is waste and silent now,
Unseen, unheard, thy waters flow!
Save where along thy moss grown side,
In mood to mournfulness allied,
Some lonely, pensive wanderer strays,
And gleans a tale of other days:—
Those stately towers, those heights sublime,
That mock'd the growing strength of time,
How fair, and firm, they once did seem;
How fleeting, thou inconstant stream!
Yet, time has spared thy changeful tide,
Though ruin wait on all beside:—
So fares it with life's doubtful span,
So nature seems to sport with man;
The mighty droop, the strong decay,
The proud to ruin waste away;
While those in mould more humble cast,
The ruin and the danger past—
Secure their peaceful throphies raise
Amidst the wreck of brighter days.

ALCIBIADES.

Alcibiades, when a young man, had to struggle with a strong nervous terror on entering the assembly of the people. Socrates tried to encourage and animate him: "You do not care much for that cobbler?" said he, naming him. Alcibiades agreed.—"Or that public crier?" resumed Socrates; "or that tent maker?" The son of Cimeas assented. "And is not the whole Athenian people," said Socrates, "made up of this sort of persons? If you are indifferent about them singly, you may surely be indifferent about them in the mass."

SLAVERY.

No man is a greater slave than he who thinks himself, and is thought by others to be a great man. He has scarce a moment on which the public has not a claim, in which something is not due to etiquette, in order to sustain his dignity, and keep up his rank in society; or in which he is not in some shape or other a real drudge to his own grandeur.

We greatly esteem the ignorance of a man, who believes and confesses his knowledge to be confined to what he knows.

CROMWELL.

In the civil war, my grandfather, Sir William Smyth, was governor of *Hillesdon House, near Buckingham, where the king had a small garrison. This place was besieged and taken by Cromwell. But the officers capitulated to march out with their arms, baggage, &c. As soon as they were without the gate, one of Cromwell's soldiers snatched off Sir William Smyth's hat. He immediately complained to Cromwell of the fellow's insolence, and breach of the capitulation.—"Sir," says Cromwell, "if you can point out the man, or I can discover him, I promise you he shall not go unpunished. In the mean time (taking off a new beaver, which he had on his head) be pleased to accept of this hat instead of your own."

*The siege of Hillesdon House is no where mentioned by my lord Clarendon. The noble historian and Sir W. Smyth, were not good friends.

BON MOT.

A gentleman who had attended a public dinner, at which there was much huzzaing, but a very scanty bill of fare, being asked what sort of entertainment he had, replied—"plenty of cheer, but nothing to eat."

AMUSEMENT.

A Liverpool paper mentions, that "a few days ago, Mrs. Bell, a widow woman in Annan, went into a meadow to milk her cow, when another cow, with horns, which was grazing in the same meadow, ran at her, threw her down, and was in the act of gorging her, when her own cow, which was at a distance, came running up, attacked the horned cow with great fury, and effectually succeeded not only in relieving her, but in all probability of saving the life of her mistress."—No doubt of it!

ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY MORNING, December 15.

We have conversed with Major Long, who commands the scientific expedition on the Missouri. He left the Council Bluffs about the middle of October last. The Missouri is extremely difficult of navigation and obstructed by vast sand bars running generally parallel with the river. The vast bodies of sand brought in by the river Platte gives this character to the Missouri below its junction with the former. Above the Platte the river assumes a more favorable aspect, being less rapid and sandy. Talks had been held with various tribes of Indians, and a friendly disposition was manifested. [Columbian.

A person called last evening at our office, and said that an officer of his Britannic Majesty's brig Dotterel had arrived at St. John's N. B. in quest of a captain Wilkins, who had been taken up by Sir Hudson Lowe, at St. Helena, and sent to England, a prisoner, but had made his escape at Spithead, and reached St. John's a short time since, but supposed to have gone from thence to Moose Island. A reward of 500 guineas had been offered at St. John's for his apprehension. He also stated that capt. W. had left St. John's last November in a brig, and had not been heard of when the brig of war arrived in search of him. Our informant did not state that capt. Wilkins was an American, or what offence he had committed—probably he attempted to liberate Bonaparte—if so, we hope the British may not take him. We should be glad to see the person who left the information. [Nat. Adv.

We understand by a gentleman who arrived last evening from Providence, that as some woodcutters were passing through the woods back of Providence, yesterday morning, they saw two men apparently engaged in digging. When the men observed the woodcutters, they appeared alarmed, and fled, carrying with them a trunk. The woodcutters pursued, when the men hastily took something from the trunk, and dropped it on the ground. On coming up, the woodmen found 1300 dollars, a considerable part in specie, and a pistol, in the trunk. The men succeeded in making their escape. The trunk, money and pistol, were carried to Providence. It is thought they intended to bury the trunk, and that what was taken out was a parcel of bills. It was understood some persons had been d spatched in the direction taken by the men, in the hope of overtaking them. [Boston D. Adv.

TRIALS FOR PIRACY.

The seamen mentioned in yesterday's Courier were again brought up before the Court yesterday, on the several other indictments preferred against them, and the same verdict was brought in on each indictment respectively by the Jury. We understand that they will be again arraigned on a charge of Misdemeanor. [Courier.

A letter received in this city, from St. Augustine, dated 1 th ult says—"The poor Spaniards are frightened at the idea of the Americans taking possession of the place by force, but as they receive neither men nor money from the Havana, it will be impossible to defend it for any time. I sincerely wish we knew what is to become of us, for all are in a state of anxious doubt, which will not be relieved until the meeting of Congress."

In Hampton Roads, bound to Alexandria, brig Cumberland, Williams, 26 days from Curracoa, with a cargo of coffee, hides and tustic, to John Gird, of Alexandria, on board—put in for provisions. Accounts from Laguira to the 5th Nov. had been received at Curracoa, previous to the sailing of the C. but they contained no news whatever.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Mobile to his friend in Baltimore, dated November 14.

"Great distress is caused by the fever here, which has not yet abated. There were four deaths this morning before I arrived, say 11 o'clock. The sick have heretofore been much neglected—Out of 6 doctors, one left town in Aug. with his family, one still remains sick, and four have died—two of them had wives, which are also dead; one other doctor arrived here about three weeks since from New-York, and has lost his wife. Many who left town for health, unhappily out of anxiety to get to business, returned too soon. It is hoped there will be a change soon, as it commenced raining on the 10th, which is the first since 4th September."

We understand, says the Albany Gazette of Dec. 8, an order has been received from the war department, for the immediate transport of some large canon from the depot at Gibbonsville, a few miles north of Albany, to our southern frontier. It is rather unfortunate that the order should arrive so late, as unless the river should again open, the transport from thence to New-York must be by land.

The changeable state of the weather, we have experienced during the week past, gives us a true indication of the approach of our winter. For the first three or four days, we have had hard frosts, and a slight fall of snow gave the amateurs of the whip an opportunity of turning out in their carioles—and a few of them embraced the short-lived pleasure. Latterly the frost is gone, and we have again rains, cold damp and unpleasant streets.

Our steam boats are preparing to go into winter quarters. The Caledonia goes to Boucherville islands, for that purpose tomorrow; and every thing indicates the coming season, when amusement takes the place of active bustle of commerce.

DISTRESSING OCCURRENCE.

On Friday last, Maria Van Valkenburgh, aged about nine years was burnt to death by her clothes accidentally taking fire while engaged near the hearth. She was at a neighboring house where there were two or three children smaller than herself, the mother of whom had just stepped out. Her clothes caught fire behind, and when she discovered it, she rushed precipitately into the street, screaming for help; but so rapid were the flames, being exposed to the air, that before any person could get to her assistance, her clothes were nearly burnt off her back, and the skin burnt to a crisp. The unfortunate girl expired in about 12 or 14 hours.

A citizen of St. Charles, who has taken the trouble to note the waggons, carriages and carts which have passed that town during the present fall, reports their numbers to average 120 per week for nine or ten weeks back. Supposing the number of individuals attached to each vehicle to amount to eight or ten, and the aggregate would be equal to 10 or 12000 souls which have entered the territory upon that line alone. They come almost exclusively from the states south of the Ohio and the Potomac, bring many slaves, large herds of cattle, fine road wagons, many handsome carriages, and give us an increase of population still more valuable for its respectability than for its numbers.

Extract of a letter to the editor of the Boston Patriot, dated Newport, Dec. 8.

The prisoner has made a confidential confession to the justices who apprehended him. That confession is still, in part, a secret—But some facts, related by him, have come to the knowledge of the public. Those facts are—He acknowledges his true name to be Thomas Daniels. He has been in your state prison four years and six days, and was committed there justly, for passing counterfeit money. He is known by other names, particularly by the name of Mr. Ray. He has been confined in Salem jail, from which he made his escape by stratagem. He has been a prisoner in Worcester jail. The mystery of the bloody silver and paper dollars, and the bloody pocket book, he says, "must have originated by his handling his bloody toes, then his money and his pocket book." The blood upon the pocket book appears (so indelible) as if it was pressed into the leather. The truth is, he relates so many stories, and the opinion of the public here is, that he is one of those evil men who perpetrated that atrocious act. He goes this day to Boston, loaded with those identical irons which he wore in your state prison. He is a man of considerable address, and quick parts—No doubt he will be identified on his arrival in Boston by many persons.

LATEST FROM THE HAVANA.

By the schr. Alert, captain Brookings, we received from our correspondent a letter and file of papers to the 24th ult. inclusive, from which we obtain the following very interesting intelligence.—M'Gregor has met with another defeat, equally disgraceful with those which preceeded it. Particulars will be found in the translation below.

"Rice dealers have been cautious of purchasing large parcels, the quantity not being very good, and the new crop daily looked for—some small parcels of ordinary were sold yesterday at $7 6-8; prime new I expect will command 8¼. It will however, decline in the course of next month to 6½ and 7. Flour holds steady at 19: some improvement looked for, otherwise our market continues without change.

I shall write you particularly by the Echo in a few days.

M'GREGOR—ONCE MORE!!

Kingston, (Jam.) Oct. 18.

On Saturday evening last, the barque Lovely-Anna, captain Gibson, one of M'Gregor's transports, came to anchor off Lime Key, in a very dreadful condition. This vessel sailed from Gravesend on the 28th of July, with 109 men, officers and soldiers, on board, bound to Aux-Cayes, where she arrived on the 16th ult. As soon as she anchored, M'Gregor sent Col. Eyre on board, with a strong guard, who took out of her all her effects and carried them ashore. They were then sold, and the proceeds applied by M'Gregor to the payment of the debts he had contracted at Aux Cayes. He afterwards sent on board 108 men, including officers, and captain Gibson was obliged to supply them with the provisions he had laid in for his crew. More troops were embarked in the schr. Amelia and the cutter Alert, and the expedition sailed from Aux Cayes on the 27th ult. for Rio de la Hacha, where it arrived on the 3d instant, and we have received the following account of the attack on that place—It is supposed that M'Gregor has gone with his booty to St. Andrews or Old Providence, to join Aury.

The expedition having arrived in sight of Rio de la Hacha, the Independent colors were hoisted, and the schr. Amelia, which bore M'Gregor's flag, fired four cannon shots at the battery, which the Spaniards returned with three. We remained under sail until dark, when we came to anchor, and the troops were landed about 11 o'clock that night two miles from the town. We began the attack with the Carroderas at 4 in the morning, in the woods from which we advanced on the town, after having waited a considerable time for M'Gregor to come up and command us; but finding at length that he was not coming, we advanced and took the town, after having suffered a dreadful fire of ball and grape shot from 24 pieces of Artillery, which killed and wounded many of our officers and men. We remained in possession of the place till the 11th, when the enemy, principally Indians, came in great numbers & attacked the remainder of our troops, who were in garrison. About an hour before the attack, M'Gregor put his baggage in a canoe, and advised col. Eyre, whom he left ashore in a very weak state, to send his wife and children on board the Lovely-Ann, and then to set sail in a schooner which he had captured on going into Rio de la Hacha. The wounded officers who escaped by swimming to the Lovely-Anna are the following—Captains Layfay, Graham, Conroy, Shatter, Cantlhill and Cullen, of the regiment of Hibernia, who together with Dr. Booth, Madame Eyre and her two children, and colonel Bonnel of the Lancers, are now on board the Lovely Anna.

Another account says, that the inhabitants, seeing the avidity with which M'Gregor and his followers robbed the town, rose in mass, and a dreadful struggle took place, which resulted in M'Gregor, and the rest of his army being compelled to take refuge on board of two Spanish schooners, which were lying at Rio de la Hacha at the time of its capture. The inhabitants, before making the attack, had called to their assistance from the surrounding country, a strong body of Indians, who, falling upon M'Gregor's troops, simultaneously threw them into disorder, and compelled them to fly in every direction. The battery, from the imprudence of some persons employed therein, blew up, and there is great reason to believe that col. Eyre perished at that time.

Col. Norcott and Major Baster fled in a prize which had been made three days before the re-capture of Rio de la Hacha.—The troops landed under the command of Major Atkinson, who was killed by a musket ball in the beginning of the action.

Col. Eyre and the rest of the troops were left to their fate, and it is supposed that part perished in the blowing up of one of the batteries, and the rest were killed by the enraged Indians and Spaniards.

We learn that the Spaniards did not withstand the British troops, who in their turn did not withstand the Indians. The latter made use of bows and arrows with great dexterity, killing and wounding numbers at every shot; they also had sabres to defend themselves in case of engaging in close combat. M'Gregor, according to custom, took no care of the wounded, many of whom might have been saved without much danger or trouble; and when pressed to give orders on this head, that they might not be left entirely at the mercy of the natives, he with the greatest indifference, replied,—"No assistance can be rendered them—this is the fortune of War." and shortly after weighed anchor, carrying with him all the crew of the Lovely-Anna, with the exception of the captain boatswain, and two seamen.

Out of 250 men who composed the expedition, only 27 reached the Lovely-Anna and they were all wounded with pionards, arrows, or ball. Happening to be near the wharf when the Indians attacked, they threw themselves into the sea, and swimming towards the shipping, were taken up in the boats.

ANECDOTES OF CURRAN.

From Memoirs of his Life by his Son.

It was probable from his early intercourse with the peasantry of his country and from the consequent conviction of their unmerited degradation, that sprang that unaffected soul-felt sympathy for their condition, so conspicuous in Mr. Curran's political career. Upon this subject, it was evident that his heart was deeply involved. From them, notwithstanding much temptation, and many dangers, his affections never wavered for an instant. From the first dawn of political obligations upon his mind to his latest hour (an interval of more than half a century,) he never thought or spoke of them but with tenderness and pity, and indignation. At the bar, in the senate,* on the bench, amidst his family and friends, or in the society of the most illustrious personages of the empire, the suffering of the Irish peasantry were remembered, and the cause pleaded with an energy and reality that proved how well he knew, and how deeply he felt for that class whose calamities he deplored.

"At any time of life," said he "might to a certain degree, as well as others, have tied up my countrymen in bundles, and sold them at the filthy market of corruption, and have raised myself to wealth, station and remorse—the envy of the foolish, and contempt of the wise, but I thought it more becoming to remain below among them, to mourn over and console them; to do where my duty called upon me, to reprimand and rebuke them, when they were acting against themselves."

The first brief that Mr. Curran had was in the Court of Chancery; he had only to read a short sentence from his instructions, but he did it so precipitately and inaudibly, that the Chancellor Lord Lifford, requested of him to repeat the words, and raise his voice: but on this, his agitation became so extreme, that he was unable to articulate a syllable; the brief dropped from his hands, and a friend who sat beside him was obliged to take it up, and read the necessary passage.

This diffidence, however, totally vanished whenever he had to repel what he conceived an unwarrantable attack. was by giving proofs of the proud and indignant spirit with which he could chastise aggression, that he first distinguished himself at the bar: of this his contest with Judge Robinson is recorded as a very early and memorable instance. Mr. Curran having observed in some case before that Judge, "That he had never met the law, as laid down by his Lordship, in any book in his library:" "That may be, sir," said Judge, in an acrid contemptuous tone "but I suspect your library is very small."—His Lordship, who, like many of that time, was a rank patriot zealot, was known to be the author of several anonymous political pamphlets which were chiefly conspicuous for their despotic principles and excessive violence. The young barrister, roused by this sneer at his circumstances, replied that true it was that his library was to be small, but he thanked Heaven that among his books, there were none of the wretched productions of the time pamphleteers of the day. "I find more instructive, my Lord, to study good works, than to compose bad ones; my books may be few, but they

* Upon one occasion, alluding in Parliament to the general apathy of the ministry the condition of the great body of the people, he observed, "I am sorry to see the rays of the honorable member's panegyric were not vertical, like the beams of the morning, they courted the mountain tops, and the valleys unilluminated—they fell on the great, while the miserable poor were in the shade."

pages give me the writers names: my shelf is not disgraced by any of such rank absurdity, that their very authors are ashamed to own them."

He was interrupted by the judge, who said "Sir, you are forgetting the respect which you owe to the dignity of the judicial character." "Dignity!" exclaimed Mr. Curran, "my lord, upon that point I shall cite you a case of some authority, with which you are perhaps not unacquainted.—A poor Scotchman, [Strap in Roderick Random] upon his arrival in London, thinking himself insulted by a stranger, and imagining that he was the stronger man, resolved to resent the affront, and taking off his coat, delivered it to the by-stander to hold; but having lost the battle, he turned to resume his garment, when he discovered he had unfortunately lost that also, that the trustee of his habiliments had decamped during the affray. So my lord, when the person who is invested with the dignity of the judgement seat, lays it aside, for a moment, to enter into a disgraceful personal contest, it is in vain, when he has been worsted in the encountre, that he seeks to resume it—it is in vain that he endeavors to shelter himself behind an authority which he has abandoned."

Judge Robinson—"If you say another word, sir, I'll commit you."

Mr. Curran—"Then, my lord, it will be the best thing you'll have committed this term."

The Judge did not commit him—but he was understood to have solicited the bench to interfere, and make an example of the advocate, by depriving him of his gown, and to have received so little encouragement, that he thought it most prudent to proceed no farther in the affair.

CURSORY THOUGHTS ON MATRIMONY,

BY A SAILOR.

When a couple of fond, faithful lovers launched by Hymen, sail through life prepared for all kinds of weather; when in every shifting part of changeable years, they guide their vessel by the rudder of reason; when they carefully avoid the rocks of imprudence, and run no risks by prohibiting commerce; when they perfectly understand each others trim and never make false signals nor hang out false colors; when they can tell to a hair, when to traverse or tack; to advance and to retreat; to preserve themselves steady, though Syrens attempt to seduce, be well ballasted ahead, and secure their hearts against the top-gallant delights of the age, which never fail to engage the fresh water fry; when they keep their rebellious passions under hatches, that they may not make a frightful explosion, and give a shock to the pillar of conjugal happiness; when they in every dispute, on the stern or the head, are never illmannered, though they are sometimes tenacious of their respective opinions; but by skilfully watching the tide, conduct their barque safely through the straits of contention, when they know at all times, how to regulate their behavior, to give a broad side, or to return a salute; when they cautiously avoid the shoals of ambition by which first rates and frigates are frequently demolished, when they cut their cables on being drawn into gaming, and sail away with all their sails spread, from the gulph of ruin, in which thousands and ten thousands are tumbled, lost and totally destroyed:—We may venture to say of this pair, that they will make a very conjugal voyage through life, and stand a very fair chance to die in the harbor of felicity.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, on Thursday, the 11th inst. a negro man, named DICK, who sometimes calls himself Dick Douglas. He is a small man about 5 feet 6 inches high, and is not a very black man. I purchased him from the estate of Edgar McCarty, esq. Cedar Grove, Fairfax county, Va. and it is likely that he may be lurking about that neighborhood or Colchester, as he has a wife at capt. Berry's of the latter place; or he may have gone to Loudoun county, as he has lived there in the neighborhood of Wm. McCarty and John McCarty, near Leesburg. He had on and took with him an old grey cloth coat and a brown do pantaloons of drab colored domestic cloth. He is much addicted to liquor, and is a coarse shoemaker. I will give 20 dollars if taken in the district of Columbia. Thirty dollars if taken in Fairfax county, and the above reward if apprehended in any other place, and secured so that I get him again; and reasonable charges if brought home. WM. B. STUART.

RAN away from the subscriber living in King George's county Va. on Monday the 22nd March, a yellow man named about 22 years of age, his fore teeth wide apart, and cannot speak very quick—had on Virginia cloth clothes and carried off a shaggy great coat, he has a father named Peter Hall, who lives with the widow Morgan, at Oak Hill, Fauquier Co. and his grandfather, old Frederick Hall, is supposed to be living at Mr. Terrett's near Alexandria, and it is likely he may be lurking about there.—I will give the above reward for apprehending and securing said fellow so that I get him again, and reasonable charges if brought home. 100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living near Aldie, Loudoun county, Virginia, on the night of the 11th inst. a negro man, who calls his name NED BIAYS. He is a shrewd, intelligent negro, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high; 30 years of age, well made, active and polite. Had on when he went away, a sky colored coat, and corded pantaloons. His right eye sore, apparently occasioned by a blow, the blood having settled around it. His ears have been pierced, and had green silk in them when he went away. It is expected he is now lurking about Fairfax court-house and Aldie. The above Ned Biays ran away on the night of the 25th of last Aug and was caught on the 11th inst on the night of which he effected his elopement by drawing the staple to which he was fastened by the handle of a pan, while there was no person in the kitchen but himself. He was caught on the 11th inst. a few miles below Aldie, but I think it improbable that he has gone near the same place again. I will give 100 dollars if he is taken out of the county, and fifty if taken in the county, and secured so that I get him again, and all reasonable charges if brought home. G. O. GULICK.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.

I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.
I. T. STODDERT,
West Hatton, near Allen's Fresh Post-Office, Charles county, Maryland.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas. He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. WM. MASON.
